Burton-Fowler Undergraduate Research Award

(March 25, 2018)

The Burton-Fowler Undergraduate Research Award recognizes outstanding research conducted by undergraduate students currently enrolled in an undergraduate degree program in the College of Family and Consumer Sciences. At least one award will be granted each year. If funds are available, multiple awards may be given. Number of award recipients and amount will be determined each year. In 2018, at least three awards of $500 each for excellence in undergraduate research will be possible.

Nomination

FACS faculty can nominate one or more of their undergraduate students' research project(s) presented at Center for Undergraduate Research Opportunities (CURO) Symposium (oral paper or poster).

Faculty members submit the following application materials:

- a) Cover sheet with student's full name, major, contact information, your name, department and short paragraph on why you selected this student's research project.
- b) The student's abstract submitted to CURO
- c) Submit these materials through email (as a PDF) to Assistant to the Dean at fac dean@uga.edu or printed copies delivered to 224 Dawson Hall.
- d) Application deadline: Monday, April 30, 2018

Review and Selection

The Dean and the Associate Dean for Academic Programs will review the nominations. Student and mentoring faculty will be invited to the Celebrating Excellence lunch in the fall following the award made in the spring, if the student is still enrolled. Name and research abstract of student recipient(s) and faculty mentor(s) will be shared with Elizabeth (Betsy) Burton Fowler and donor representatives. The funds will be processed through UGA's scholarship system and will be deposited in the students' UGA account with the Bursar.
